REFLECTION ON
St. Pius X, Pope

Giuseppe Melchiorre Sarto was born of humble peasants on June 2, 1835 at the Venetian Village of Riese, Italy. Even as a child he was noted for his intelligence, good character and solid piety. He was born in poverty; and this poverty characterized his entire life.

In 1858, at the age of 23, he was ordained priest and appointed assistant in the parish of Tombolo. His parish priest wrote, "They have sent me a young priest, with orders to mould him to the duties of a pastor. However, the contrary is true. He is so zealous and full of good sense and other precious gifts that it is I who can learn much from him. Some day or other he will wear the mitre, of that I am sure. After that - who knows." Indeed, these words were prophetic.

In 1884 Fr. Sarto was made Bishop of Mantua. In 1893, he was made Cardinal. On August 20 1903, Cardinal Sarto was elected Pope. He took the name Pius X, at a troubled period in history of the Church on account of the subversive laws of France, the painful division between the state of Italy and the Holy See and the spread of modernism.

His papal motto, "to restore all things in Christ," is taken from the letter to the Ephesians 1:10. It is part of St. Paul's canticle of praise, in which the Apostle places Jesus at the center of all things as their beginning and final end. All things have their meaning from Christ. All things reach their perfection through Christ. And anything that has fallen away from the good can only be restored by Christ.

Pope Pius X used his motto in revising and renewing the liturgy, the Missal, the Breviary and Church music, in codifying Canon Law and promoting Catholic Social action. But he is remembered even more for his love for the Holy Eucharist. He urged the faithful to receive Holy Communion frequently and allowed children who had reached the age of discretion to participate and received the Eucharist. He steadfastly fought modernism which in his time was a powerful threat to the integrity of the faith and the organic life of the Church. For Pope Pius X, modernism is the synthesis of all heresies.

In his ministry as the chief shepherd of the flock of Christ, Pope Pius X had to face many serious difficulties and conflicts, but he faced them all calmly and firmly.
In his last will and testament Pope Pius X wrote, "I was born poor, I have lived poor, and I wish to die poor." Through his simple and unassuming style of life while holding the highest office on earth, and through his instructions, he taught the value of humility. While he was sympathetic towards every human need, he was an admirable example of strength, too. He dedicated his labors to bring about the ideals of faith, charity, justice and peace. Pope Pius X was canonized on May 29, 1954.

May the wisdom and strength of Pope Pius X, his humility and simplicity, his charity and love for the poor, his devotion to the Holy Eucharist and to Mother Mary be for us light and inspiration for a truly Christian life as we celebrate the Feast Day of St. Pius X. (excerpt from Feastday, by George Kaitholil)

Blessings,
Fr. Greg Honorio

Our Prayer to St. Pius X

So deep was your humility, O Holy Pius X, that when you were raised to the summit of the priesthood you shed tears of heartfelt grief, declaring yourself unworthy of the office; by your prayers to God on our behalf, procure for us, too the grace to be humble in all our doings and to be submissive always to His holy will.
Be our patron, dear St. Pius X, in your loving kindness to set us free from every evil. And at the moment of our death, come to our assistance, so that we may be with you in Paradise and together with you sing the praises of our Lord and of our Blessed Mother. AMEN
